

ARMED FORCES DAY – EDINBURGH – 25th JUNE 2011

The recent Regimental Gathering at Cameron Barracks succeeded in attracting the largest number of Queen's Own Highlanders in one place for many, many, years and was a rip roaring success.

Scotland, and Edinburgh in particular, is going to be the UK's national focus for Armed Forces Day on Saturday 25th June 2011 and would it not be a great feat if we could produce a similar bumper turnout to show the thousands of spectators on the day that the Blue Mafia are still very much alive and kicking?!

If you are up to marching down the Royal Mile from the Castle to Holyrood Palace then just turn up at 10.20 am at Johnstone Terrace and fall in behind the Association Standard (please let Danny Carruthers know if you will be attending on 01506 829766). A member of the Royal Family will be taking the salute and there will be loads of activities laid on afterwards if you want to bring your family along.

See you there

Yours aye

George Givens
Chairman of the Edinburgh Branch
